

TJSL Welcomes Fall 2013 Incoming Students

“You have really made one of the most important decisions of your life,” said Dean Thomas Guernsey as he welcomed the Fall 2013 incoming class of the Thomas Jefferson School of Law on Monday, August 12. “You have chosen to become a lawyer, and have chosen to take on a set of responsibilities that can truly change you forever. You are about to join a profession that many believe, including myself, provides a cornerstone of stability to this country.”

Maral Nicole Mehrabian is from L.A. and is thrilled to be a Criminal Law Fellow at the Thomas Jefferson School of Law. “I am excited to start at TJSL and I am extremely excited to explore San Diego! But I have to admit that I am also nervous about not knowing anyone, but hopefully that will all change soon.”

Associate Dean for Student Affairs Beth Kransberger introduced herself along with members of the TJSL faculty and staff. “Welcome to the law school, we are thrilled to finally have you here.”

During Associate Dean Kransberger’s opening remarks she explained that 11 % of the incoming class have served our country through military service, “We have current and former members of the Marine Corps, the Army, the Air Force, the Coast Guard and the Navy. 31 % of you are coming to us from outside the state of California.” said Kransberger. “You come to us from 32 different states. 16 % of you were born outside of the U.S and are from 23 different countries.”

“It took me 4 days and 38-hundred miles to get to San Diego from Anchorage, Alaska but it was totally worth it,” said Criminal Law Fellow Coleman Alguire. “I am excited to get started.”

TJSL Welcomes Fall 2013 Incoming Students...

“This is a wonderful school,” said New Yorker Jeryl Wilford. “The opportunities they have here at TJSL are ‘bar none’ to the other places that I considered. I am grateful to have received an IP fellowship and I am extremely interested in sports law.” Wilford is one of 56 incoming students who recently move into Entrada, the student housing apartment complex, joining the 136 TJSL students who also live there.

Third year law student JB Campbell helped the Admissions team welcome the incoming class. “I told some of these students today that it seems like only yesterday that I was doing this and now I am planning to graduate in May. I told them to enjoy it because the time goes so fast.”

Theo Montgomery is from Jackson, Mississippi and is now thrilled to call himself a San Diego resident. “I wanted to do something and be somewhere different and San Diego and the Thomas Jefferson School of Law provided that,” said Montgomery. “I am really ready to get into the groove of things. I am really ready for classes to get started.”

In total the Thomas Jefferson School of Law welcomed 265 new full-time and part-time students.

CONGRATULATIONS TO TJSL'S 2013 TOP ATTORNEY FINALISTS

JULIE GREENBERG

MARYBETH HERALD

LILYS MCCOY

STEVE SEMERARO

Four TJSL Professors and nine alumni have been selected as finalists for the 2013 Top Attorneys Recognition by the San Diego Daily Transcript. All finalists are described as "San Diego's legal cream of the crop" by the Transcript's editors.

Professor Julie Greenberg, Professor Marybeth Herald, Professor Lilys McCoy and Professor Steve Semeraro were named in the Top Attorneys in the Academic category of this annual honor, where attorneys are nominated by and voted upon by their peers.

"I am very proud to have been selected as a Top Attorney," said Professor Steve Semeraro. "I have admired those named in the academic category in prior years and I am both surprised and delighted to be able to count myself among a very select group."

"I'm honored to be included with fellow TJSL faculty whom I greatly admire," said Professor McCoy, an adjunct professor who heads TJSL's Center for Solo Practitioners. "The entire TJSL community--students, staff, faculty and alumni--are a remarkable group. Their passion for the law and for equal access to justice through TJSL's dynamic programs inspires me to do better every day I am there."

"I am delighted to be selected for this honor," said Professor Herald, while Professor Greenberg remarked. "I am so pleased to have been selected along with my colleagues at Thomas Jefferson, who are such accomplished teachers and scholars. Professors Greenberg and Herald have been named as a Top Attorneys in the Academics category multiple times."

TJSL Adjunct Professor Lea Fields-Bernard, who is also the co-coach of the Mock Trial Team, was named as a Top Attorney in the Municipal and Government Law category.

Among the Eight TJSL Alumni named as Top Attorney Finalists are: Criminal Law / Kerry Armstrong '07, Family Law / Puja Sachdev '06, Immigration Law / Ruth Ellen Spillane '08, Insurance Law / Robert Vail Closson '86 and Andrew Dunk '86, Labor/Employment / Joshua D. Gruenberg '92, Personal Injury / James Matthew Brown '81, Real Estate & Construction Litigation / Danielle G. Nelson '01 and J.P. Roach '10, Real Estate & Construction Transactional / J.P. Roach '10

Panel Discussion

The Intersection of Race and Law: Response to Trayvon Martin Tragedy and Zimmerman Not Guilty Verdict

TJSL Professors Participated in Panel on Zimmerman-Martin Case

TJSL Professors Marjorie Cohn and Kaimipono Wenger were panelists on Friday, August 9, at a special event, “The Intersection of Race and Law: Response to Trayvon Martin Tragedy and Zimmerman Not Guilty Verdict.”

The panel discussion was held from 6 – 8 p.m. at the San Diego Foundation Center for Civic Engagement, at Liberty Station. The public was invited.

The moderator, Scott Lewis, is the CEO of the Voice of San Diego and the other panelists were NAACP of San Diego President Lei-Chala Wilson and The Executive Director of Federal Defenders, Reuben Cahn.

“This panel discussion delved into some of the most critical issues raised by the trial of George Zimmerman, including the role race played in the trial, the jury instructions and what will happen next in this tragic case,” said Professor Cohn.

According to the event’s organizers “There are various issues to discuss including why the prosecution was not able to meet its burden of proof, views on whether mistakes were made at trial, backlash from the verdict, the potential federal civil rights action the NAACP has called for with its petition to the Department of Justice, gun laws and the role of racial bias in this tragic incident and the events that followed.”

“Out of this tragic incident one positive thing might be the spark of consciousness that has encouraged many people to better understand the laws that affect them locally and to reexamine the ways racial bias plays out in everyday life. This event is meant to educate members of the community, bring clarity to key legal issues and offer participants an opportunity to get engaged in the San Diego community.”

Deborah Micev (3L) with Federal Magistrate Judge and TJSL Trustee William McCurine, Jr.

Deborah Micev (3L) Has Great Externship with Federal Magistrate Judge McCurine

Deborah Micev (3L) is completing a summer long externship with Federal Magistrate Judge William McCurine, who is also a member of TJSL's Broad of Trustees.

"My externship is about to wrap up and I couldn't have had a better summer," said Micev. "Judge McCurine is a wise man and I learned many lessons. Thank you to everyone at Thomas Jefferson!"

Q-What made this externship a great experience for you?

"The best part of the externship was talking to Judge McCurine, and not just about the law, but more so about life and relationships. He's an amazing person and I feel very lucky that our paths in life have crossed."

Q-What were your duties?

"I wrote up an order, a report and recommendation and various case summaries. I frequently attended criminal hearings and settlement conferences. All of the externs also go on several tours, including the bankruptcy courthouse, the federal prison and the U.S. Marshals facilities. I learned many lessons in the courtroom, observing the attorneys and Judge McCurine interact with each other and the defendants. I also learned a few good secrets to mediation: keep it real and make both sides feel like winners."

Q-How did the internship come about?

"Professor Julie Cromer Young submitted my name after I completed an oral presentation in her Civil Procedure class. I am very grateful that she considered me a good candidate for this position."

Q-How did TJSL prepare you for the internship and how did it help you on the job?

"I think the most important lesson I learned at TJSL is to be nice and ask questions. That way you create opportunities for learning and meeting people everywhere you go. Hopefully, you find fun and friends along the way!"

TJSL to Host National Sports Law Negotiation Competition in September

Thomas Jefferson School of Law is proud to host the National Sports Law Negotiation Competition for the third year in a row on September 20-22, 2013.

The first two NSLNC competitions at TJSL were extremely successful and the 2013 edition is shaping up to be very successful as well.

"NSLNC 2013, the Third Annual for Thomas Jefferson School of Law, looks to be another well-attended and great event," said Competition Director Jeremy Evans '11. "We have a wonderful diversity of law schools from around the country and some interesting competition negotiations planned. The festivities will start Friday, September 20 with the Center for Sports Law & Policy's Conference and Awards Ceremony, followed that evening by the Dodgers vs. Padres game at Petco Park in suites for NSLNC competitors and coaches. Saturday is the Competition, Saturday night is the finalists announcement and certificate presentation on TJSL's rooftop terrace, and on Sunday the final round will be held in the Moot Courtroom. A special thank you to the NSLNC Board and Assistants, the Alternative Dispute Resolution Society, the Sports Law Society and the Center for Sports Law & Policy for helping to organize these events"

Here is a list of the NSLNC 2013 teams that have registered so far:

Professor Alex Kreit Publishes Book on Drug Law and Policy

Professor Alex Kreit's latest book is titled Controlled Substances: Crime, Regulation, and Policy, and it's the first major casebook published on drug laws since 1983.

"While modern drug laws have dramatically changed our criminal justice system, they are strangely absent from the curriculum at most law schools," said Professor Kreit. "This book is designed to accommodate a number of different types of courses on drug abuse and the law. I teach the subject as a three-credit lecture course that covers drug policy, drug crimes, and drug regulation, using materials from the first seven chapters of this book. However, this book could also be used in a seminar on drug policy or the 'war on drugs,' an advanced criminal law course, or a study abroad course on international and comparative drug control. Portions of the book could also be used to supplement a first-year criminal law course. I have found learning about and teaching this subject to be incredibly enjoyable and rewarding."

There has not been a casebook dedicated to controlled substances law since the second and final edition of Gerald F. Uelman and Victor G. Haddox's Drug Abuse and the Law: Cases, Text, Materials in 1983.

According to the publisher, Carolina Academic Press: "Drug offenders are a ubiquitous part of our criminal justice system. Approximately 1.5 million Americans were arrested for a drug offense in 2011, more than for any other single category of crime. Drug convictions have fueled an explosion in our prison population with drug offenders constituting nearly one quarter of our prison population. Indeed, with the number of Americans incarcerated for a drug offense today larger than the entire United States prison and jail population in 1980, it would not be an exaggeration to say that the single most important development within the field of criminal law over the past four decades has been the war on drugs.

"Controlled Substances: Crime, Regulation, and Policy provides a comprehensive overview of the many fascinating issues of law and policy related the criminalization and regulation of illegal drugs. The book begins with materials on the debate about prohibition and its alternatives, with a particular focus on the modern "war on drugs" model of prohibition. After establishing this foundation, the book turns its attention to the drug laws themselves, taking an in depth look at controlled substances offenses, drug sentencing, and the investigation of drug crimes. The book then considers the body of administrative law that governs the classification of controlled substances and the use and distribution of controlled substance for medical purposes. Finally, the book concludes with an overview of international and comparative issues in drug law."

Professor Kreit is the former Chair of the City of San Diego Medical Marijuana Task Force.

Volunteers Needed For Clean Slate Clinic!!!

The San Diego Reentry Roundtable – Employment Subcommittee is hosting a Clean Slate Clinic on the 1st Saturday of each month. The clinic will assist clients through the criminal record expungement process. Expungement can have a significant impact on the person's employment rights, public housing, and public benefits.

WHO

We are looking for law students and community members to staff the clinic! Under the supervision of attorneys, volunteers will conduct client intake, assess client eligibility for expungement, assist clients with drafting declarations, and provide clients with legal information after consultation with a staff attorney. This is excellent experience to add to your resume and great way to give back to your community.

TRAINING

Volunteer training is usually provided on the 1st Friday of the month (the day before the clinic)

Thomas Jefferson School of Law
1155 Island Avenue, San Diego, CA 92101
