

Linda Keller Appointed Associate Dean for Academic Affairs

Thomas Jefferson School of Law Dean Thomas Guernsey has announced the appointment of Professor Linda Keller as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

Here is his announcement:

"I am pleased to announce that Linda Keller has agreed to accept the position of Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. Please join me in congratulating her. As most of you know, Professor Keller joined the TJSJL faculty in the fall of 2003. After graduating from law school, where she was notes editor for the Yale Law Journal, she served as a clerk and supervisor in the Legal Research Office of the Connecticut Judicial Department. She then taught international human rights law and legal writing for four years at the University of Miami School of Law, where she also served as Fellow of the Center for the Study of Human Rights.

"I want to thank the faculty and staff, and especially the screening committee, for the way that the search was conducted so expeditiously. The process involved an incredible amount of work in a very short period of time. There was a wonderful group of candidates, all of whom would have made good deans. The process really has reinforced my impression that we have a great faculty here at Thomas Jefferson School of Law.

"Dean Keller will assume her responsibilities immediately. I know everyone will do their most to make her transition as smooth as possible."

"I am honored to serve as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs," said Dean Keller. "I look forward to working with Dean Guernsey and the entire TJSJL community as we address the challenges facing law schools with continued innovation and creativity."

Congratulations Dean Keller from everyone in the TJSJL family!

TJSL Professor Integral in Getting Important Bill Passed

On Monday, June 24, 2013 Lobbyist Larry Doyle, who is working with TJSL's Director of the Solo Practice Concentration and the Incubator Program Professor Lilys McCoy and the Conference of California Bar Associations ("CCBA") presented the group with some welcome news. "I am very pleased to inform you that Governor Brown today signed into law AB 1183 (Jones), containing your CCBA Resolutions 02-06/08/09-201. The bill is now Chapter 18, Statutes of 2013, and will take effect 1/1/2014. This is the first of what hopefully will be several CCBA-sponsored bills signed into law this year. Congratulations on being the groundbreaker!"

Professor McCoy is the former CCBA Chair and is proud that AB 1183 was her original idea. She says her involvement was to write up the idea and present it to the delegates at the 2012 Conference of Delegates in order to win their support.

The bill, now Chapter 18 of the Statutes of 2013, will take effect January 1, 2014. It is based on CCBA Resolutions 02-06-2011, 02-08-2011, and 02-09-2011, by former CCBA Chair Lilys McCoy of the San Diego County Bar Association delegation. The measure passed both houses of the Legislature without opposition or 'No' votes.

"The CCBA worked on this bill less than a year in terms of working with the legislature, but the process started in Winter 2012 when I drafted the resolution and began working to obtain the support of the delegations to the CCBA," said Professor McCoy.

Professor McCoy explains that one of the CCBA lobbyist worked with Assemblymember Brian Jones to help get this bill passed.

According to the CCBA website AB 1183, by Assemblymember Brian Jones of Santee, specifies in statute that the clock does not begin to run on the deadline for filing motions to compel further response to discovery requests until verified responses to the requests are received. This simple clarification in the law will help decrease litigation games-playing and abuse of the discovery process, to the benefit of practitioners, clients and the courts.

"I am pleased to be a part of this great organization that takes California legislative proposals from concept to law," said Professor McCoy. "This really is a great group."

The Conference of California Bar Associations is a group of attorneys from local, specialty, and minority bar associations across the state, who are focused on improving California's laws.

"The group is great fun and actually changes the law for the better," said Professor McCoy. "It's been a professional passion of mine for 20 years and I would love to see more people involved."

TJSL Alumna and USMC Attorney Participates in Rifle Training

She closed one eye, took aim and squeezed the trigger. In one powerful instant, Hallie Balkin '10 knew how it feels when a Marine fires an M4 carbine.

Balkin '10 has been working for the U.S. Marine Corps for the past several months as Assistant Counsel with the United States Marine Corps System Command (MCSC) in the Washington, D.C. area.

Recently, she got to handle and fire an M4 rifle - one of the most important tools of the trade for Marines in combat.

Balkin and several colleagues were at the Marine Corps Base in Quantico, Virginia, participating in a rare type of training exercise for civilian Marine Corps employees. The idea was to give them a taste of what combat is like for Marines.

"Being able to participate in a simulated force environment allowed me to better understand what our Marines endure in combat situations," Balkin says. "As an attorney for the U.S. Marine Corps, experiencing a mere glimpse of combat situations many Marines face on a regular basis when deployed further bolstered why it is imperative to procure the safest equipment to keep our Marines out of harm's way."

Balkin says that when the training was over she could definitely feel the effects of firing the sophisticated carbine.

"I held the M4 rifle steady for four ten-minute periods," she says. "I was particularly amazed at how sore my arms were for several days after!"

Balkin's husband, Alexander Balkin '11 is also a TJSL alum and was recently hired at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) in Washington, D.C., as a Program Analyst in the Division of Planning and Budget, Internal Control and Planning Team.

Associate Dean William Byrnes' New Book for LexisNexis is on FATCA Compliance

Associate Dean William Byrnes' newest book titled "LexisNexis Guide to FATCA Compliance" was published as an electronic book the week of June 24. This Lexis book is being purchased internationally, with hard copy orders already delivered in Asia, Europe, North America, and the Caribbean. FATCA is the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act.

Professor Byrnes said, "I am deeply grateful to my subscriber base that it has so well received this new title, my fifth, in my Lexis library. I think that Lexis' enthusiasm is shown by the fact that it just contracted me this past week to become the author for a sixth title (on transfer pricing) that I will begin working on next week."

"I built the international tax & financial services program with a mission of teaching professionals how to become excellent professional communicators of this robust and complex area of law, because this is what my mentors bestowed upon me – the original industry authors such as Walter Diamond, Jacobus ("Joop") van Hoorn, Marshall Langer and Barry Spitz.

"Thus, I designed this FATCA Compliance Manual with the help of Thomas Jefferson School of Law alumni, such as Jason Fiske '08, and several other LLM alumni, and via numerous interviews and meetings with government and central bank officials, NGO (non-government organizations) staff, large financial institution compliance officers, investment fund compliance officers, and trust company counsel.

"It is amazing how many contributing experts that I can leverage with modern communications technology, and organize discussions and editing among multiple persons using online platforms."

"About this book, very simply, the FATCA regulations require foreign financial enterprises to report financial information about U.S. taxpayers to the IRS. Moreover, U.S. financial institutions must begin reporting similar financial information on foreign taxpayers to the IRS that the IRS will automatically forward to the respective foreign government. Noncompliance leads to a 30% withholding on all payments made to the non-compliant institution, which will drive such institution out of the US market rather quickly.

"FATCA became effective on January 1, 2013, albeit withholding begins only January 1, 2014. Though FATCA was enacted 3 years ago, there is substantial industry concern that many impacted compliance departments currently do not have access to sufficient, detailed information regarding which sources of the enterprises income are foreign and which are based in the U.S. and which of their customers are U.S. (taxable) persons (e.g. dual U.S. nationals, substantially presence U.S. tax residents). Financial institutions must look through foreign corporations and foreign trusts to determine if the owners are U.S. taxpayers, and if so, in many circumstances report the persons to the US Treasury, under these new FATCA regulations."

"The Manual comprises 25 Chapters grouped in three parts: compliance program (Chapters 1-4), analysis of FATCA regulations (Chapters 5 – 13) and analysis of FATCA's application for certain trading partners of the U.S., including intergovernmental agreements (Chapters 14 – 25)."

TJSL's Saipan Connection

The Pacific island of Saipan an unincorporated territory of the U.S. in the Northern Marianas Islands has become a career stop and destination for many TJSL alumni, who are finding opportunities there.

Presiding Judge Robert C. Naraja of the Superior Court for the Northern Mariana Islands has selected David Ellis, a May 2013 TJSL graduate, as his next judicial law clerk. Ellis will start in August, after taking the Florida bar exam.

During law school Ellis worked hard to develop his research and writing skills through internships with the California Attorney General's Office, the San Diego Superior Court, and two small local litigation firms.

"I would like to thank everyone in Career Services for all their help, and I am really looking forward to this great experience!," said Ellis. "I have been informed that this position will include, not only working closely with the judiciary, researching and drafting orders and memos, but also working with students in the local school system and other such involvement in the community."

"Thomas Jefferson School of Law helped to build the foundation of my legal knowledge and guided my education and understand of complex legal issues and offered support every step of the way, without which I would not be prepared for this undertaking," Ellis added.

"As some of you may know, we have had a strong track record of alumni landing clerkships with the judges in Saipan," said Beverly Bracker, TJSL's Assistant Dean for Career Services. "We continue to be very grateful to Professor Marybeth Herald for helping us establish and build our contacts there. Charity Hodson '12, Cindy Nesbit '07 and Sean Smith '11 are all currently clerking with judges in Saipan.

"Occasionally I am asked about the longer term career impact of clerkships in a remote location like this, so I thought this would be a good time to review where some of the Saipan alumni clerks over the past ten years are now working."

- Kelley Butcher '03: Stayed in Saipan, first working as an Assistant Public Defender, then as an associate at a small firm, and most recently she works as legal counsel for the CNMI Public School System.
- Jordan Davis '09: Completed a second clerkship with a state court judge in Nevada, and now is an associate at Lionel Sawyer & Collins in Reno, NV.
- Jennifer Dockter '08: Stayed in Saipan, working for the Attorney General's Office, then with the Supreme Court of Saipan as General Counsel and Clerk of Court, and currently in private practice there.
- William "Sonny" Downer '05: Stayed in Saipan working for the Attorney General's Office through 2010, and is now a Deputy Attorney General with the California Department of Justice in Sacramento.
- Erik Fox '03: Completed a second clerkship with a state court judge in Nevada, and now is a partner at Marquis Aurbach Coffing in Las Vegas, NV.
- Deborah Gerads '03: Worked for the government, I think it may have been the U.S. Department of Justice, in Washington DC for a number of years. She is now with the Department of Homeland Security in Texas.
- Pejman Kharrazian '11: Now an associate at Epstein Grinnell & Howell in San Diego.
- Peter Prestley '08: Stayed in Saipan where he is an Assistant Attorney General.
- Michael Wilt '09: Also stayed in Saipan where he is an Assistant Attorney General.

A Message from Nice, France from Director of the Nice Study Abroad Program Professor Susan Tiefenbrun

Dear Students, Faculty, and Staff,

This is the end of the second week of the Nice Study Abroad Program in International Law. It is hard to believe that it is more than half over. We have 44 American students from 7 different law schools, 21 students from the University of Nice Law School, most of whom are French but some from Poland, Holland, Italy, and Morocco. The American students are integrating fully inside and outside the classroom with the students from Europe and North Africa! Last Friday we all went to the French court and observed a trial involving tax evasion, which was particularly interesting to us because Professor Richard Winchester, who is a specialist in international tax law, was able to give us insights into the intricacies of the French tax law system. We marveled at the lawyers and judges in robes, the articulate defense by the defendant's lawyer, a university of Nice tax law professor, and the theatrical nature of the trial. On Monday we had a fun French class taught by Professor Susan Tiefenbrun, who stressed the importance of good French pronunciation...form over substance...and the art of sounding oh so French! On Tuesday we had a fascinating presentation by our distinguished guest lecturer from Shanghai, Dr. Chen Ke, who spoke to us about the legal complexities of a Chinese nuclear power plant financing project that his international law firm in China has been working on for years! Dr. Chen Ke is a great supporter of our China Study Abroad Program, and it was wonderful to see him here in Nice. He speaks fluent Chinese, English, German, and some French as well. On Wednesday we all visited the Nice Bar Association and enjoyed a royal welcome by Madame Marie-Christine Mouchon. She is the President of the Nice Bar Association. She spoke to us about what the Bar Association does, how a foreigner can practice law in France, and what type of disciplinary actions the Nice Bar Association handles. She is the second woman President of the Nice Bar Association since its inception hundreds of years ago! We all ate lovely French cookies and pastries (macarons), drank juice or coffee, and heard from the Chief Justice of the High Court of Amiens, Francoise Alienot-Thienot, who helped me organize this important visit to the office of the "batonnier" (President of the Nice French Bar Association). On Saturday former Dean Rudy Hasl arrived in Nice. On Sunday Professor Randy Grossman, Justice Richard Goldstone, our one and only Lisa Ferreira, and Professor Barry Sullivan from the American Bar Association all arrived en masse in Nice! On Monday we heard a mesmerizing talk by Professor Randy Grossman about how to become a sports agent and the differences between being a sports agent in the US and in Europe. He also taught for the day in Professor Alex Kreit's class on International and Comparative Drug Control Laws, talking about drugs and sports. Justice Richard Goldstone taught in Professor Susan Tiefenbrun's International Human Rights class, focusing on the politics of international justice. His presentation was inspiring and very informative. Justice Goldstone was appointed by Nelson Mandela to be the first Prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia as well as the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda. In the Nice Program in the recent past we have hosted Ted Meron, now President of the Appellate Division of these two tribunals, Louise Arbour, the second Prosecutor of these two tribunals, and Professor David Scheffer, the then U.S. Ambassador who signed the International Criminal Court Rome Statute, which was later "unsigned" during the Bush Administration. This week we will hear a lecture by Judge Jean-Louis Bruguiere, the famous French Prosecutor who sentenced Carlos the Jackal to prison and who consults with President Obama on anti-terrorism tactics. The afternoons in Nice are filled with fun, sun, swimming at the beach, walking in Old Nice, eating great French food, and making lots of new friends. Students in the Program travel to places far and near like London, Rome, Barcelona, Pamplona for the running of the bulls, Prague, Paris, Madrid. Others, like me, prefer to stay in Nice and take long walks by the seaside, visit the Fondation Maeght Museum in St. Paul de Vence, or visit the markets in the old port of Antibes where Jackie and Aristotle Onassis kept their yachts. Antibes is amazing.

So tune in for more next week. Nice is very, very nice!

The deadline for ILSA Quarterly Student Editorial Board Applications is July 10, 2013.

ILSA student members may apply to serve on the ILSA Quarterly Student Editorial Board. The Student Editorial Board members edit articles, write columns, and site-check submissions, and are required to dedicate at least three hours per week to these tasks.

The ILSA Quarterly is an academic magazine that features articles written by students, scholars and practitioners concerning timely issues of international law and related topics, as well as information on ILSA projects, study abroad programs, LL.M. programs and career opportunities in the field of international law.

Applications are now being accepted for the 2013-2014 ILSA Quarterly Student Editorial Board, and the application form is attached to this email.

The deadline for submitting applications is July 10, 2013.

All applicants are required to submit the application form, a cover letter and a short writing sample. Completed applications and writing samples can be sent via email to quarterly@ilsa.org. Please pass along this announcement to all ILSA Chapter members at your school.

Questions about the Editorial Board may be directed to quarterly@ilsa.org.

THE CHALLENGES OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Tuesday, July 16, 2013 5:30 PM – 7:00 PM Room 227

Professor Linda Keller will draw on her experience as a Visiting Professional at the International Criminal Court (ICC) to explore some of the key challenges facing international criminal justice. Using the current cases against top officials in Kenya as an example, she will discuss issues including definitions of international crimes, state cooperation, protection of witnesses, and prosecutorial discretion or alleged misconduct. The Kenya cases represent the first use of the ICC prosecutor's power to open a case on his own initiative. They are currently at the beginning of the trial stage, after charges of crimes against humanity have been confirmed against four accused. The companion cases have given rise to disputes over admissibility, with Kenya seeking jurisdiction over the cases and, failing that, seeking Security Council intervention. Controversy has arisen over the selection of defendants, adequacy of evidence, credibility of witnesses, and interpretation of crimes against humanity committed by non-state actors. The recently elected President and Deputy President of Kenya are defendants in these cases, accused of complicity in crimes against humanity while on opposing sides in post-election violence from the 2007 elections. As a result, it is likely that the upcoming trials - assuming they go forward - will continue to raise high-profile controversies.

U.S. COURT OF FEDERAL CLAIMS BAR ASSOCIATION

LAW STUDENT WRITING COMPETITION

ENTRY DEADLINE: 11:59 PM, JULY 26, 2013

The United States Court of Federal Claims Bar Association conducts an annual Law Student Writing Competition. The Court of Federal Claims Bar Association is a non-profit, voluntary bar association made up of nationwide members who practice law before of the United States Court of Federal Claims. The goal of this competition is to encourage law student scholarship on current topics that fall within the jurisprudence of the United States Court of Federal Claims. The winning entry in the competition will receive a $2,000 cash prize and an opportunity to be published via the Association's website.

The cases before the court are diverse and involve a variety of statutes. They include claims arising from tax refunds, government contracts, Fifth Amendment takings (which can implicate environmental and natural resource issues), Federal procurement "bid-protests," Federal civilian and military personnel matters, intellectual property disputes, Native American tribal rights, and the federal Vaccine Injury Compensation Program.

Entries to the contest may address any topic that lies within the procedure, substance, or scope of the jurisdiction of the United States Court of Federal Claims.

Entry deadline for the 2012-13 academic year is July 26, 2013.
